Mr. Tanner claimed that Chimborazo had been once stuck into the original resolution under a heavy pressure, and he hoped that the whole matter would be considered, and not any particular part of it. He was sorry to see that a sectional feeling was being enendered in this matter. Mr. Williams denied that there was any ectional feeling in the case; if there is any, t has been introduced by the gentleman from Monroe Ward (Mr. Tanner). He laimed that Chimborazo had peculiar advantages, and he thought it eminently proper that Chimborazo should be improved as a

Mr. Carrington said that he was from that portion of the city designated as the West End, but he thought there was great force in what the gentleman from Marshall Ward Mr. Williams) had said. The people in the West End have Hollywood, which is as good a park as one wants; we have Monroe Park and the Capitol Square, Gamble's Hill and the old reservoir, besides the land around the new reservoir, which is large enough for breathing space for the entire city. He thought that the Church Hill people were entitled to what they ask, and while he thought that the city was in no condition to appropriate the money, he would join the gentleman from Marshall Ward in his scheme. Mr. Mauly said that he regarded the case under consideration as peculiarly meritorious, and he would vote for it with pleasure if he thought it could be separated from the lies and classes in the church, he felt that it

THE POWERS OF JUSTICES OF THE PEACE .-We published yesterday morning the opinion of Mr. Cabell, Commonwealth's attorney, given the Chief of Police relative to the powers of justices of the peace. It was printed from a proof furnished us, which contained several important errors. In justice to Mr. Cabell we reprint the opinion as written by him, as follows: RICHMOND, Va., November 6, 1874.

Major John Poe, Jr., Chief of Police, City of Richmond: Dear Sir,-Inanswer to your request for my opinion in reference to the powers and jurisdiction of justices of the peace other than police-justice of the city of Richmond I have the honor to submit the following: The Code of Virginia, 1873, chapter 48, sections 8 and 9, extends the jurisdiction of justices of the peace to petty larcenies and cases of assault and battery not felonious, but with the proviso that in cities and towns in which there is a police-justice the powers and jurisdiction conferred by these sections shall be exercised only by said police justice, or some justice acting in his place, according to law. From the above it will be seen that in Richmond no justice has any jurisdiction over or power to try the above cases, save To twenty-one registrars, seven when in the absence of the police-justice he

> DEATH OF MR. THOMAS W. McMAHON -SOME DETAILS OF THE LIFE OF A REMARKABLE Man.-Mr. Thomas W. McMahon, a member of the bar, and a well-known citizen of Richmond, died Sunday morning of enlargement of the liver. Deceased was born in Dubiin, Ireland, in 1834, studied for a while at Manooth College, and came to America in 1849. He studied law at Binghamton, N. Y., and afterwards became a deputy naval officer of the port of New York. He was for some time the friend and private secretary of Ben. Wood, and frequently contributed to his paper, the New York News, and to other Democratic sheets. Mr. McMahon made the acquaintance of Hon. Jefferson Davis in New York, and became a warm admirer of that gentleman. When the war broke out he heartily espoused the cause of the South, left New York and went to Montgomery, Ala., and offered his services to President Davis, He was given a position near the person of the President, and came with him to Richmond when the Confederate seat of government was removed hither.

He was very handsome when he first came to Richmond, and dressed and bore himself like a gentleman of great dignity. To the last he kept his dignity and his sorrows, and much of his early history he smothered in his own breast. In conversamusic and the drama led him to talk much upon those subjects. Though for the last two or three years he lived in great poverty, and keenly suffered the consequences of free living, he never yielded to any temptation pointing to the path of dishonor, and he was liked and trusted by all who knew him.

His funeral took place yesterday from St. Peter's Cathedral; the services were conducted by Father Handley, and a large number of friends followed his body to the M'lle. Aimé: is handsome, sings splendidly, and acts with all the piquancy and grace imaginable. Her company is a very large and well-trained one, and is accompinied by an orchestra thoroughly organized. The opera presented last night was La Fille de Angot, which is not new in Richmond. It was rendered very well. Aimée as Clairette, M'lle. Nardyn as M'lle. Lange, and Mons. Kolletz as Ange Pitou, won unusual applause from our naturally undemonstrative people. The audience was not as large as it would have been had the weather been more proclearing, sometimes showery and cloudy-it stances ended in disgust. As a consequence more seats for every other night than last night were sold. Yet the dress-circle and orchestra were nearly filled. To-night the same opera will be repeated, and under better auspices, no doubt.
